Description of the Related Art Refrigerators are configured to include a frame defining an accommodation space, a cooling chamber in which objects are accommodated, and doors provided at front and rear sides of the cooling chamber. it wasn't really a competition. The only other possibility is that the exhibitors didn't participate but it's hard to believe that the majority of the contractors on the site couldn't send their best workers. Many of the women are wearing the traditional Islamic dress – a hijab or other headgear that covers the hair and the neck. A vest that goes over the top buttoned to the neck is often worn. The women – the veiled may be of any age or race – are taking their places on the street as if in the centre of a lane leading to the holy places. For many years all that has stood in the way of the Damascus Road walk has been the hundred-metre width of highway that separates Damascus from Lebanon. The imposing wall that stretches out from the Damascus Gate in the Old City has essentially cut off any traffic other than pedestrian traffic and tourists. Now all that has changed. Another wall has been built facing the Old City to house the expanding numbers of visitors as well as to protect Israel from the daily shelling from the nearby Palestinian refugee camps. But that wall has a second purpose, to turn the Old City's main road into an open-air pedestrian mall. This section of what has come to be known as the Damascus Road walk was opened last week. The road is still being blocked off in various places and there are still huge cranes and other construction equipment to remove for later transport to the new high-rises to be built in Jerusalem's new west. But the work is proceeding and the street, which is under the control of the government-run al-Waqf, the Islamic trust that manages and profits from the Old City, is lined with granite cobblestones, lined with shops, restaurants and cafes, and most importantly, lined with the city's electric sellers, who come out with the green-plastic containers to fill up on power. Today, visitors can enter the Damascus Road walk and continue down towards the Old City wall. They pass checkpoints that set limits on the number of people who may enter the Old City itself. Down on the newly laid-out promenade, under the shade of the gigantic eucalyptus trees planted along the road, the people are beginning to gather. It's all very orderly and controlled, as befits a visit to holy ground. The customers come in groups of two or three, and every group is
